REFLECTIVE SOFTSHELL JACKET ORIOLUS SIZE L

Overview

The Oriolus series warning softshell jacket is certified workwear designed for work in conditions requiring increased visibility and protection against adverse weather conditions. The model is recommended for road, construction, infrastructure, and service work carried out in vehicle traffic zones and anywhere where the good recognition of the worker's silhouette and comfort of work in the field are crucial. The Oriolus series stands out with its simple, technical form, careful finishing, and functional solutions adapted for intensive use. The use of wide, 50-millimeter reflective strips increases the user's visibility both during the day and at night. The contrast black material below the chest limits the visibility of dirt and improves the durability of the jacket in areas most exposed to wear and tear. The jacket is made of a three-layer softshell fabric. The outer layer made of fine, durable polyester provides mechanical resistance, the TPU membrane in the middle protects against wind and light precipitation while maintaining breathable properties. Inside, a short-cut fleece is used to improve thermal comfort without excessively increasing the weight of the clothing. The whole works particularly well during work in colder days in the autumn-spring period. The functional pocket arrangement, closed with zippers, allows for safe storage of documents, tools, and small accessories. The detachable hood allows you to adjust the jacket to current weather conditions and the nature of the work being performed.
